COMPANY BACKGROUND

DT Analytics was created in September 2010 to provide increased visibility, quality analysis, and expert consultation on domestic extremist activity within the United States. The company's name is derived from its primary purpose: to analyze the forces and factors that influence domestic terrorism (DT) activity. Daryl hopes to educate a broad audience about the possible dangers and potential threats related to this current and very relevant subject.

The thought of creating a small business to monitor domestic extremist activity in the United States was first envisioned in May 2009. At the time, the idea was more of a passing thought—simply put, it was wishful thinking. The whole thing seemed like an overwhelming and unattainable task. It would take nearly a year for an opportunity to present itself. Ultimately, through unwavering dedication, pure determination and lots of hard work, Daryl was able to take a fleeting idea, create a vision and eventually turn it into a reality. His raw passion for the subject also provided a strong incentive and the necessary will power needed for the incorporation of DT Analytics.

ABOUT

Daryl Johnson is one of the foremost experts on domestic terrorism in the U.S. Beginning his career as a civilian in the U.S. Army, he has held several government positions, including senior analyst at the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms, and Explosives (ATF) and, more recently, lead analyst for domestic terrorism at the Department of Homeland Security (DHS). Over nearly 35 years, he served as a senior intelligence analyst and later as a senior security specialist across several federal agencies. He is the Owner of DT Analytics, a private consulting firm for law enforcement, academia, and other organizations.

In 2022, Daryl accepted a position with Clear and Present Strategic Solutions, based in Los Angeles, California, as its Senior Strategic Advisor. He has served as an Honorary Board member for We Are Many-United Against Hate in Madison, Wisconsin, since 2020, as well as a Non-Resident Fellow at the Center for Global Policy (now Newlines Institute for Strategic Policy) in Washington, D.C. In 2019, Daryl co-founded Jolly & Johnson Consulting (now defunct) to provide specialized training for BSA/AML professionals.

Johnson is regularly cited, featured, or quoted in the media, including the New York Times, Washington Post, Wall Street Journal, Newsweek, National Public Radio, MSNBC, CNN, and NBC Nightly News, among many others at home and abroad. He is the author of "Right-Wing Resurgence: How a Domestic Terrorist Threat Is Being Ignored" (Rowman & Littlefield, 2012), "Hateland: A Long, Hard Look at America's Extremist Heart" (Prometheus Books, 2019), and "The Fractured Homeland: Inside America's Escalating Domestic Terrorism Crisis" (2026). Daryl is also a freelance writer for various media and civil rights organizations. In 2012, he testified before the Senate Judiciary Committee on hate crimes and the threat of domestic extremism.

MISSION STATEMENT

DT Analytics' mission is to collect, report, and share information on the topic of domestic terrorism through private reporting to clients, public speaking, expert witness testimony, and social media. This means utilizing publicly available sources to provide and report credible, accurate and timely information to government and security professionals, as well as the general public.

TESTIMONIALS

"Your presentation on the topic of domestic threats was an integral part of the course's success. The material you covered was well-suited to the needs of our students and the goals of the course, and it was presented in an accessible and engaging manner. I look forward to working with you again and do hope you will be available to present soon."

BOOKS

Daryl Johnson has written three books on the topic of domestic extremist movements and activities: Hate Land, Right Wing Resurgence, and The Fractured Homeland.

Hate Land

"Timely, direct, and insightful as it captures the political present and its various subcultures. . . . Direct, powerful prose results in a disturbing look at the US. Every page seems to open new insights into the lives of those who hold alarming ideologies." — Foreword Reviews

"Hateland is easily among the top few contemporary works on the dangerous rise and evolution of American extremism. What separates it from much of the punditry out there is Johnson's keen ability to weave his years of expertise into a thoroughly readable and straightforward book. Anyone concerned about the trajectory of our nation and interested in the story of how we got here will find this work invaluable." — Prof. Brian Levin, director, Center for the Study of Hate and Extremism, California State University, San Bernardino

"Johnson offers us hope in an important and timely book that provides an antidote to hate. He addresses one of the most pressing issues of our time—the rise of domestic terrorism and how to effectively counter it—and outlines a surprising and significant solution." — Robert Bartholomew, coauthor of American Intolerance

"Daryl Johnson calmly reveals myths and exposes truths in this thorough and thoughtful exploration of how social media and the underlying internet entice, enthrall, and sometimes entrap consumers and producers of polyglot propaganda, promotion, political vitriol and promise, social division and yet the countering truth and critique that may enable the great conversation of history its fullest engagement." — Glenn E. Oehms (reader)

Right Wing Resurgence

"A sober assessment of the dangers posed by right-wing extremist violence in the United States in the 21st century." — Mark Pitcavage, Director of Investigative Research at the Anti-Defamation League

"For years the lead analyst of non-Islamic domestic terrorism for the Department of Homeland Security, Daryl Johnson was the primary author of a report describing the threat of resurgent right-wing terrorism that was leaked in 2009. In his new book, Johnson offers a damning account of DHS leaders' political cowardice when the report came under baseless criticism from the political right, culminating in its repudiation by DHS Secretary Janet Napolitano and the evisceration of Johnson's team — actions that left America more vulnerable to terror from the right." — Mark Potok, Southern Poverty Law Center

"In the year after Obama's 2008 victory, the number of militia groups tripled to 512—some suggest the number is higher. Many of these groups embrace a more radical and militant vision than in the past. Johnson, an expert on right-wing extremism, examines the dynamics of these groups and details how the threat they pose is being ignored." — Library Journal

"This book is an excellent, however expensive, study in the importance of integrity in leadership. This isn't a disgruntled employee with an axe to grind, reading this book he has some great suggestions for how to make the DHS better." — Nick MacTavash (reader)

The Fractured Homeland

Inside America's Escalating Domestic Terrorism Crisis

America is at war with itself. The enemy is not foreign. The weapons are purchased legally. The battlefield is a Walmart in El Paso, a synagogue in Pittsburgh, a congressman's baseball practice in Alexandria, a rabbi's home in Monsey on Hanukkah night, the United States Capitol on January 6th.

In The Fractured Homeland, Daryl Johnson — one of the foremost domestic terrorism analysts in the United States and the primary author of the Department of Homeland Security's prescient 2009 warning about rising right-wing extremism — delivers the most comprehensive account yet written of America's domestic terrorism crisis.

Drawing on more than three decades of frontline intelligence work and meticulous research across hundreds of cases, Johnson maps the full spectrum of the threat: white nationalists, militia extremists, jihadist-inspired lone actors, anti-Semitic killers from the far right and the far left, eco-saboteurs, incel terrorists, and a new generation of neo-Luddites targeting the artificial intelligence industry.

The picture that emerges is urgent, bipartisan, and unsparing. Johnson documents how conspiracy theories migrate from fringe platforms into mass violence, how dehumanizing political rhetoric produces statistically predictable bloodshed, how antisemitism has become the one ideology that unites perpetrators from every corner of the ideological spectrum, and how the agencies and institutions designed to protect Americans have repeatedly allowed politics to override evidence.

Other Works

Daryl Johnson's catalog also includes titles on national security and personal topics:

- Unguarded Skies: Safeguarding America's Commercial Nuclear Fleet Against UAPs and Drones of Unknown Origin
- Step Forward: A Personal Guide to Life After Above-the-Knee Amputation
